

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
UNLAWFUL KILLING VERDICT RETURNED IN HARRY STANLEY INQUEST
OCTOBER 29TH 2004

The jury in the second inquest into the death of Harry Stanley have returned an Unlawful Killing verdict based on the evidence heard since 18th October. HM Coroner Dr Andrew Reid left three possible verdicts for the jury to return, Open, Lawful Killing and Unlawful Killing.

Deborah Coles, Co-Director of INQUEST who has been working with the Stanley family said: "This inquest is a vindication of the Stanley family's fight for the truth and the only just outcome of this shocking case. Metropolitan Police officers used unlawful force in deciding to shoot an unarmed man. We now expect them to be prosecuted for manslaughter. We have always believed that these officers should face criminal charges."

The Stanley family have already had to endure an inquest where the coroner denied the inquest jury the opportunity to hear from firearms experts and to consider whether Mr Stanley had been unlawfully killed. This inquest has revealed the truth about how an unarmed man could be shot dead and has held those responsible properly to account.

Daniel Machover, solicitor at Hickman and Rose said: "A prosecution should follow this unlawful killing verdict immediately. The CPS were present in court throughout the inquest and we hope they will announce their decision imminently."

Irene Stanley, Harry's wife said: "Finally justice has been done. But this is only the beginning. Harry is still dead. He was Unlawfully Killed and somebody must be held accountable."

Background

On 22nd September 1999 Mr. Stanley was shot dead by Inspector Sharman and PC Fagan police officers from the Metropolitan Police firearms unit SO 19. A few minutes before the shooting a caller told the police that an Irishman had just left the Alexandra Public House in Hackney carrying a sawn-off shotgun wrapped in a bag. That person was in fact Harry Stanley a 46-year-old Scottish painter and decorator and father of three children who had been carrying a coffee table leg that had been repaired by one of his brothers. On his journey home he visited a public house for a lemonade and while there a member of the public mistook, first Mr Stanley's Scottish accent for an Irish accent, and second, the table leg that he was carrying for a gun. The armed officers responded to the call and killed Mr Stanley in very controversial circumstances.

The original inquest took place in June 2002 in front of the then HM Coroner for Inner North London Dr Stephen Chan. At its conclusion the jury returned a unanimous ‘open’ verdict having been denied the opportunity to consider whether his death was a result of an ‘unlawful killing’.

As a result of a number of serious procedural errors by the coroner the family judicially reviewed the coroner on a number of points including the failure to call independent expert evidence, to give reasons for any of his decision making or give the jury the opportunity to decide if this was an unlawful killing. Last year, Mr Justice Silber ordered that a fresh inquest be held.

INQUEST has continued to work with Mr Stanley’s family and their lawyers and has raised concerns about the case with MPs, government ministers and international human rights organisations. We have major concerns about the number of fatal shootings by the police (25 since 1993) and procedures for holding the police to account which serve neither the public interest nor the families of the deceased. A disturbing number of these deaths could and should have been avoided.

This inquest is the first one where the recently established Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) will be separately represented through its own legal team.
